

AIA Georgia Annual Design Conference October 10-12, 2013 Columbus, GA

Historic Columbus, Georgia is home to the 2013 AIA Georgia Annual Design conference. Building upon the success of the AIA South Atlantic Region's re:inventing architecture theme, the AIA West Georgia Chapter is planning an innovative and exciting annual design conference. adapt re:New will focus particular attention upon:

- Connecting adaptive reuse, historic preservation and the economic development that results from good design
- Reinvigorating your personal and professional passion for architecture as we emerge from the challenging economy
- Repositioning you and your firm for success
- Engaging students, academics and professionals in new dialogue regarding architecture as a career
- Committing to our host community through a legacy charrette

Whether you are a sole practitioner, part of a small or large practice, a student, intern or allied professional, the annual AIA Georgia conference is the place to get inspired, learn, and focus on what architects do to lead positive change in a changing world.
