The AATA's Response to the Violence and Discrimination in Charlottesville

AATA National Office

The AATA extends its condolences to members of the Charlottesville community following the abhorrent acts of senseless violence and racism that took place during the weekend of Aug. 12. Our hearts go out to the victims and families of Heather Heyer, Lieutenant, H. Jay Cullen, and Trooper-Pilot, Berke M. M. Bates who died and the dozens who were injured as well as to the nation – all are impacted by these devastating events. Consistent with AATA's core values of inclusivity and social justice, the AATA rejects any and all emboldened racism across the country. As the community confronts the injustice of discrimination, the AATA would like to share the following resources:

- The AATA's Chapter Emergency Trauma Recovery Guide: Providing Art Therapy Services Following Natural and Man-made Disasters that was created to offer support in the event of terrorism and other disasters. This includes a special Trauma Recovery-Art Therapy Program Fund to support a victimized community.

Colorado Chapter Hosts a Pop-Up Art Show Featuring Art Therapists

Nissa Jackman, MA, LMFT, ATR, ATACO Board Member

Recently, the Art Therapy Association of Colorado (ATACO) held a pop-up art show showcasing art therapists as artists at hOMe Collective in Wheat Ridge, CO. The show featured artwork from a dozen local art therapists and a station was set up for people in attendance to create artist trading cards that would be displayed at the Lakewood Public Library as part of an installation. The show's focus was to bring art therapists and people from the community together for an evening of relaxed revelry and art making while getting to know some of the art therapists in their community through their artwork on display. A Psychoanalytic Perspective On Hatred And Bigotry

Robert Irwin Wolf

In response to the violence in Virginia over this past weekend, when a neo-Nazi fanatic violently plowed his vehicle into a crowd of protesters, killing one woman and wounding 19 others, I would like to offer a brief response, to help understand group hatred from a psychoanalytic perspective, and hopefully offer a way to help promote more social tolerance. 7 science-backed reasons you should make art, even if you're bad at it

Business Insider

Art is intrinsically linked to humanity. We've been making it for about as long as we've been called humans, and few would argue against its value as culturally enriching as well as emotionally and often intellectually rewarding. Making art for art's sake is plenty. Yet as scientific research has shown, our minds seem built to enjoy and analyze art deeply, and creating it, no matter your skill level, is good for you. North Tonawanda gallery exhibit focuses on art as therapy

The Buffalo News

Those who created more than 30 artworks for a new exhibit in North Tonawanda, New York, have been challenged by depression, anxiety, schizophrenia and other mental illnesses. Some have endured deeply traumatic experiences. Others have been homeless. All find therapy, and greater understanding, when drawing or painting. READ MORE
