

Heartland Acoustics & Interiors shines with the new Colorado office remodel

With growth, there must be change, and for Heartland Acoustics & Interiors that change included a full renovation of their headquarters office in Colorado. To highlight what they do best, the recently renovated office features multiple ceiling and wall applications in each of the rooms so when guests visit they can see the high-quality products that Heartland is known for delivering.

Everything in the office is new and fresh. Each room is decorated to fit the modern feel of the company and new colors brighten each department. Common areas are filled with activities for all to enjoy and the full kitchen/cafe was a welcomed addition as well.

“Even though our existing office space was very nice, the design and finishes didn’t represent the current market or allow us to showcase new products, so it was time for a refresh,” says Jason Gordon, Heartland Acoustics & Interiors President & CEO. “It’s important to me that we provide a workplace that matches our fun and creative culture and that our staff can enjoy the time they spend at work.”

Though the floor space did not increase in size, the reconfiguration makes it feel larger. With more emphasis being put on open work space the entire office has gone from feeling segmented and compact to giving the team a feeling of comradery and an increase focus on working together to solve problems.

As the company continues to grow, it is important to show the new products and applications, whether it be a wall treatment, a ceiling application, or sound proofing of a noisy area. One unique feature in the Collaboration Area is four graphic printed wall panels that look like a graffiti brick wall. The picture was taken by Gordon on one his trips to Austin, Texas where Heartland has a new branch. The photo is of the side of an Austin building that has since been painted over so no one will ever see that artwork again, unless they come to the Heartland office. The unique product is one of several that are showcased in the office.

Heartland Acoustics & Interiors is a specialized interior contractor performing suspended acoustical ceilings, specialty metal ceilings, wood ceilings, acoustical wall panels, acoustical sound treatments, and stretch wall & ceiling systems.

"We are committed to customer satisfaction, quality installations, and honest working relationships and we are excited to have our new Colorado office to display what wall and ceiling solutions we can do for our customers," says Jason Gordon, President/CEO of Heartland Acoustics & Interiors.
