The screenshot shows the homepage of the EDD Data Library. At the top, there is a navigation bar with links for "Data Library Home", "All Data", "Tutorials", "News", and "About". Below the navigation bar, there is a section titled "EDD Data Library" with a play button icon. A descriptive text explains the purpose of the library, mentioning access to data related to California industries, occupations, employment projections, wages, and labor force. It also mentions the use of the data to better understand California's economy, make informed labor market decisions, and promote the state's overall economic health. A link to the "EDD Data Library Overview" is provided. The main content area contains three graphs: "Current Unemployment Rate" (a line graph comparing California and the U.S. from 1979 to 2012), "Regional Economic Profiles" (an interactive map of California color-coded by industry clusters), and "Labor Force Participation Rate" (a line graph comparing California and the U.S. from 1979 to 2012). Below these are eight blue boxes representing different data categories: "All Data" (server icon), "Employment Projections" (bar chart icon), "Occupational Information" (person icon), "Industry Information" (bar chart icon), "Labor Force & Unemployment Rates" (people icon), "Regional Economic Profiles" (map pin icon), "Unemployment Insurance" (building icon), and "Wages" (money bag icon).

EDD Data Library

The EDD Data Library provides access to view and download data and information related to California industries, occupations, employment projections, wages, and labor force. The data can be used to better understand California's economy, to make informed labor market decisions, as a tool to direct efforts to promote the state's overall economic health, support workforce development and much more. To learn how to use this data tool, visit EDD Data Library Overview.
