THE GRAIN VAC REVOLUTION STARTS NOW

Swift Current, Saskatchewan, Canada – Rem Enterprises Inc. revealed the new GrainVac VRX to Canadian equipment dealers on March 19th, and to their U.S. counterparts in Shenandoah, Iowa on the 22nd.

According to General Manager Richelle Titemore, the company has invested the bulk its of R&D dollars into this product line because farmers are faced with change and risk. Titemore elaborates:

“In today’s farming climate, where the only constant is change, it is critical to have a grain handling solution that can take whatever circumstances you throw at it. There is no other grain handling solution that can match the adaptability and consistent speed of a grain vac.”

Rem’s focus for the new machine has been to make it easy for people to find, use and service. The company believes it has achieved these goals through extreme-testing and a wholehearted commitment to making the VRX the best grain vac on the market today.

The GrainVac VRX is the 10th in the Rem fleet. It can be viewed in full at grainvac.com. Rem currently sells and supports this product line overseas and throughout North America.

Rem Enterprises Inc is an agricultural equipment manufacturer founded in 1966. In addition to proprietary products selling under the Rem and Delta brands, the company provides custom manufacturing services and spring wire forming for other OEM’s in the industry. Rem enjoys being part of the community of Swift Current, Saskatchewan as well as Shenandoah, Iowa. The company is online at rementerprisesinc.com.
