

CERULEAN WARBLER FOREST ENHANCEMENT PROGRAM

Take advantage of funding opportunities for private landowners to manage woodlands for forest health and wildlife benefits!

M. Shumar

Forests are abundant in West Virginia, but many woodland wildlife species are declining. In order to thrive some species require active forest management that restores a healthy mix of cover and tree species.

If you own wooded property like this >>

you may be eligible for financial and technical assistance to manage your woodlands for game and non-game wildlife using research-based guidelines.

P. McElhone

J. Sheehan

T. Boves

To take advantage of funding opportunities, contact the program coordinator or your local NRCS service center:

USDA is an equal opportunity employer and provider

Kyle Aldinger
(304)284-7595 | kaldinger@nwtf.net