

What's This All About?

Beginning in 1975, the Urban Entomology Program at the University of California Riverside has maintained a long tradition of research, outreach and partnership in dealing with urban insect management.

The UC Berkeley Urban Pest Management Center concentrates on existing information and develops new information to more fully understand the natural biology, detection, and management of our urban insect pest species.

Donations to the Fund are not only tax-deductible, but your support ensures that UC Riverside and UC Berkeley can continue to provide research and outreach efforts dedicated to pest management.
