Call for Nominations: Nancy Schoebel Distinguished Legislative Service Award

AATA National Office

The American Art Therapy Association has opened the call for nominations for the Nancy Schoebel Distinguished Legislative Award. Nancy Schoebel was an inspiring art therapist and a vigorous supporter of art therapy at the local, state, and national levels. This award is designed to recognize AATA members' ongoing efforts to elevate the art therapy profession. We know that any legislative success is thanks to the hard work and perseverance of volunteers on the ground. Now is your chance to recognize those colleagues who are making a difference in your community by nominating them for this prestigious award! Check out more opportunities for the 2019 Scholarship & Nominations season in the areas of Honors, Nominations, Research, and Scholarships! READ MORE

Teen Heart Transplant Recipient Uses Art to Bond With New Heart

The Indy Channel

April is Donate Life Month and according to the latest numbers from the Indiana Donor Network, there are about 70 people in Indiana that need a heart transplant. Nationally, there are nearly 3,900 people on that list. For some patients, the struggle is not just in the waiting for an organ donation, it is the accepting and understanding of the new heart that is the toughest battle. READ MORE

"I was injured by a land mine while I was in South Korea. I took shrapnel in my left leg — didn't lose the leg, but I've had a lot of issues with the leg since," the 42-year-old Ooltewah resident says, before adding that he also cared for patients injured by the 9/11 terrorist attack while he worked in Walter Reed. Although he officially left the Army in 2002, he dealt with its aftermath for 17 years: PTSD. READ MORE

Making the Aspen Art Museum Accessible to People With Autism f t in e

The Aspen Times

The Aspen Art Museum has long touted the fact that its admission is free and that it is open to the public six days a week. But keeping the doors open to all isn't enough to make all feel welcome, the contemporary art institution's leaders concluded several years ago as it embarked on a rigorous initiative aimed at providing access to everyone.
