PRESS RELEASE

QualityPro Manager Training exclusively available for free to QualityPro certified companies

Fairfax, VA (June 2, 2015)

Great managers make for a great company! Great companies show off their excellence and stand out in the pest management industry through their commitment to and participation in QualityPro. The QualityPro certification program helps companies grow by providing tools for hiring and training employees. QualityPro is excited to announce the first ever supervisor training specific for pest management professionals. The QualityPro Manager Training, a four part, animated series, is now part of the set of valuable resources exclusively available to certified companies.

“The most important job of a manager or supervisor is to develop his or her people. This training series teaches core HR concepts that managers and supervisors in the pest control industry need to succeed. Whether you have newly promoted supervisors or tenured managers, this training will help educate and prepare your management team to effectively lead and develop their people,” says Jean Seawright, HR consultant and author of the QualityPro Manager Training.

QualityPro Manager Training topics include:

- Managing peers
- Supervisory responsibilities and the law
- Interviewing potential employees
- Coaching employees for success

“Growth in our company depends upon great people—selected well, taught well, and coached well, while avoiding legal missteps. With this valuable resource from QualityPro, I can be sure that my management team is properly equipped and empowered in building and developing their teams for our mutual success,” says Russ Ives of Rose Pest Solutions.
