Kim O'Connor ServicePro CIO Earns Top Award
ServicePro CIO Named Top 50 Women Leaders in SaaS

Columbus, Ohio: On October 22, 2020, Kim O'Connor, CIO at ServicePro, the US-based field service software provider, was named one of the Top 50 Women Leaders in SaaS by The Software Report. The award recognizes not only her professional achievements but also her commitment to being a role model for the future generations of female leaders seeking a career in the technology sector. Fellow winners include women leadership roles at prominent technology organizations such as Microsoft, Slack, and Zoom.

"We are honored to see Kim's expertise and commitment to inclusivity and positivity honored in this award," says Andy Deering, CEO at ServicePro. "For over 25 years, ServicePro has promoted equality in our organization and across the industry, and we are committed to continuing to do so."

"These exceptional executives have played significant roles, which in many cases have led to profound results," says Jonathan Carlos, Editor at The Software Report. "Their deep expertise, leveraged into organizational advantages, spans corporate strategy, human capital management, operations, marketing, customer success, and finance, among other areas."

Awardees were selected for their contributions to their companies and their demonstrable expertise in SaaS; also known as software as a service, is a method of software delivery that allows data to be accessed from any device with or without an internet connection and a web browser. The awardees were chosen following a rigorous review of both their professional backgrounds and nominations from colleagues and peers.
