

HOW HYDROVAC RENTALS CAN BOOST YOUR CONTRACTING BUSINESS

There are a wide variety of benefits to renting equipment in comparison to buying. Purchasing equipment can sometimes require a large capital outlay upfront, resulting in your vital cash flow being tied up. Renting allows your resources to be dedicated to core business activities by freeing up cash and reducing the requirement to store equipment year round.

Renting also provides contractors with the opportunity to provide next-level service to your customers. If the equipment currently being rented is not ideal for the customer's next application or job size, you have the flexibility to right-size the equipment, based on your customer's specific needs, allowing the job to be completed with greater efficiency.

A contracting business also benefits by being able to utilize new technology as it is introduced, to stay competitive.

Expanding Your Business

Renting can help contractors develop their business by expanding into diverse industries and application areas. Contracting companies can develop their business not only through cost savings, but being able to take on more and bigger jobs and redirect resources into expanding staff and operations.

Rent To Purchase

When it's in the long-term interest of a company to buy a hydrovac instead of rent, there is the option of renting to purchase with some rental companies. The key advantage of renting to purchase is that your business will be familiar with how to run the equipment.
